

2025 Summer Institute on Neurodevelopmental Disabilities Conference

Bridging Science and Real Lives:
Research, Practice, and Advocacy in Neurodevelopmental Disabilities

Join us for the 2025 Summer Institute on Neurodevelopmental Disabilities Conference on Friday, July 25! This engaging event brings together professionals, researchers, self-advocates, family members, disability advocates, policymakers, community members, and students/trainees for a day of learning, collaboration, and inspiration.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE CONFERENCE

Keynote on Cutting-Edge Research

Hear UC Davis MIND Institute experts share research findings, including intervention approaches for fragile X syndrome, intervention for ADHD, and insights into how environmental factors shape neurodevelopmental outcomes.

Autism-Focused Panel

This panel of autistic individuals and family members will talk about their strategies that help them feel meaningfully included in all parts of their lives.

Interactive Workshops

Workshops cover vital topics for developmental disabilities: enhancing Down syndrome communication, mastering autism evidence-based practices, empowering caregivers with MIND Institute resources, planning inclusive lives, advancing fragile X treatments, and boosting ADHD executive skills. Gain practical tools and cutting-edge insights.
